- Store non-perishable food. Dry dog food, canned dog food, and dog treats can all be stored for long periods of time. Make sure to rotate your stock so that you're always using the oldest food first.
- Find natural sources of food. In a post-apocalyptic world, you may need to rely on natural sources of food for your dog. This could include fruits, vegetables, and even insects. Do your research to learn which plants and animals are safe for your dog to eat.
- Purify water. If you can't find clean water, you'll need to purify it before giving it to your dog. There are a number of ways to purify water, including boiling it, filtering it, or using a water purification tablet.

In a post-apocalyptic world, you'll need to find a safe place to shelter your dog. This could be a house, a barn, or even a cave. Make sure the shelter is well-ventilated and has a way to keep your dog warm.
