The author, Sarah Prout, was raised in a dysfunctional family and experienced a great deal of trauma in her childhood. As a result, she developed a number of health problems, including chronic pain, fatigue, and depression. Prout tried everything she could to find relief from her symptoms, but nothing worked.

Finally, Prout turned to energy healing. She was skeptical at first, but she was desperate for help. To her surprise, energy healing helped her to heal her physical, emotional, and spiritual wounds. Prout was so inspired by her experience that she decided to become a healer herself.

The Making of Healer is a memoir, a self-help book, and a spiritual guide. Prout shares her personal story of healing and transformation, and she offers practical advice on how to heal yourself from the inside out.
